

CALL FOR PAPERS

Volume 6, Number 1

The journal of Economic Anthropology (Wiley Blackwell) is calling for open submissions for Volume 6, Number 1, which is to be published in January 2019. EA is a bi-annual refereed journal published by the Society for Economic Anthropology (SEA) to make available research that is innovative and interdisciplinary and focused on economic and social life to serve scholars, practitioners, and general audiences. The journal has recorded the highest rate of growth for readership for all 33 American Anthropological Association journals for the last two years. To further the goal of making the most current research available to a broad audience, EA emphasizes clear and accessible writing. We encourage authors to take advantage of the journal's online format and incorporate photos, graphics, and links to videos or other related materials. The journal considers the work of scholars and practitioners at all points in their careers, including advanced PhD students.

Timeliness is an important consideration in the EA process. It is our goal to bring each issue to final publication within approximately one year from the date of submission. This ambitious deadline represents a big commitment to getting new work out quickly and serves everyone's interests, including junior scholars who are especially pressed to publish in quality journals without long lead times.

The open submission issue features articles spanning a wide array of topics and disciplines including:

- Sociocultural Anthropology
- Archaeology

This CFPs offers a tremendous opportunity to have your work reviewed and potentially published within a year! Manuscripts must be submitted no later than January 20, 2018. The requirements for consideration include the following:

GUIDELINES FOR SUBMISSIONS:

If you are interested in pursuing the possibility of getting your work published in EA, please submit a polished article to economicanthro@americananthro.org. Follow these guidelines:

1. The article must draw on original and clearly presented research.
2. The article must present clear contributions to existing scholarship.
3. The article needs to concern the interaction of economic and social life.
4. The writing must be very clear and very organized. Keep jargon to a minimum, or where possible, explain complex terms with ordinary language. Significant readability problems will disqualify an article before it goes to peer review.

5. Articles may not exceed 8000 words including abstract, notes, references, and captions. Two graphics are permitted in the online typeset version. Additional text and graphics are welcome as Supplementary Material, accessible from the article.
6. Articles must conform to the 16th Edition of the Chicago Manual of Style, Author-Date (http://www.chicagomanualofstyle.org/tools_citationguide.html).

The benefits of submitting to EA are plenty—our journal is part of the AAA consortium of scholarly journals indexed in AnthroSource. EA is also indexed in a number of ProQuest and CABI products and is easily found online. Wiley Blackwell does a lot of work on search engine optimization to ensure that EA's content is discoverable. They work closely with Google to ensure that articles meet all criteria for inclusion in Google search engines and our articles are indexed by Google, allowing them to be discoverable by abstract terms, as well as terms available only within the full text. Wiley Blackwell also actively promotes EA content across multiple disciplines, including anthropology and economics.

I look forward to receiving your manuscript submissions. Please do not hesitate to contact me with any questions.

Thank you,
