From Program Chair Sharon K. Davis

I first began attending the annual meetings of the Pacific Sociological Association in 1975, as a first-year graduate student. The intellectual stimulation, the opportunity to meet some of my academic role models, the professional networking, and feeling welcome in the sociological community have kept me committed to the organization ever since.

I wish to thank many people for keeping the PSA vibrant and relevant, and for contributing to the success of the 2019 annual meeting. First, thank you to Executive Director, Lora Bristow, for her leadership and for being the glue that holds us together, who believed I could be an effective Program Chair. Second, thank you to the Amys; Amy Orr and Amy Leisenring, for your guidance and support. Third, thank you to President Elaine Bell Kaplan for your clarity of vision and collaboration. Working with you has been a wonderful experience. And finally, a big thank you to the 2019 Program Committee. Your hard work and willingness to serve makes it all possible. To the new, the continuing, and the multiple session organizers; your commitment and generosity inspires and humbles me. You are my heroes and major contributors to the intellectual excellence, diversity, and inclusivity of these meetings.

Thank you for electing me as your President...
It is with great humility that I want to thank you for electing me to serve as your 2019 President. We will celebrate PSA’s 90th year of investing in and mentoring sociologists, including future sociologists—young people who often do not have a say in this society. I cannot thank you enough for providing me with an appreciation for all the PSA does to support its members—and for the committees, presenters, and volunteers who are assisting me in bringing all of these events together. And thanks to Lora Bristow and Sharon Davis—you both gave me so much support.

It is exciting to be part of an organization that embraces the work of members from the surrounding communities at its meetings. Thank you for all of your hard work in pulling this gathering together. I am looking forward to seeing you in the hallways, at panel discussions, or milling around the wine, coffee and food areas.

Elaine Bell Kaplan

Presidential Sessions

Thursday, March 28

12:00-1:30 pm Presidential Panel: Millennials and Moral Panic Thursday OCC 208
Organizer: Elaine Bell Kaplan
Presider: Roberto Rivera, UC Riverside: Criminal Justice System
James Mckeever, Pierce College: Teaching Millennials
April Koeberle, CSU San Marcos: War, Trauma, and Moral Injury: Women Veteran Experiences in Continuous War—
Millenials
Hyeyoung Woo, Portland State University: Millennials’ Experience of Transitions to Adulthood: The Case of Korea
This panel will discuss the need for evolving teaching methods to meet the needs of Millennials and Generation Z. Particular attention will be given to the use of technology, popular culture, and social media sites in making the information relevant and keeping the interest of these generations.

1:45-3:15 pm Presidential Panel: Millennials in Social Movements OCC 208
Organizer: Elaine Bell Kaplan
Presider: Hajar Yazdiha, USC: Social Movements
Chelsea Johnson, USC: TeamNatural: Black Beauty and Millennial Forms of Resistance
Karina Santellano USC: The DACA Program: Undocumented College Students & Dream
How are millennials leading the charge in contemporary social change? Through rich studies of beauty politics and the Natural Hair Movement, Black men shaping new masculinities at work and home, and undocumented students navigating institutions of higher education, this panel explores how millennials are bridging and forging new communities, generating hybridized identities that challenge fixed conceptions of identity, and developing new mechanisms for changing the world around them.

3:30-5:00 pm Presidential Panel: Enduring Issues Facing Latinx Millenials OCC 208
Organizer/Presider: Pierrette Hondagune-Sotelo. USC: Home/Hogar
Emir Estrada, Arizona State: Family Work/Trabajo en Familia
Edward Flores, UC Merced: Justice/Justicia
Glenda Flores, UC Irvine: Generaciones/Generaciones
This panel focuses on Latinx millennials. What are some of the key social issues they face in the early 21rst century, and how did previous young generations of Chicanas/os, Latinas/os and Mexican-Americans contend with these challenges in other historical eras? Each presentation will use empirical research and analysis to focus on a particular theme: justice, generations, family work, and home.

5:15-6:45 pm Presidential Session: Film: F R E E: The Power of Performance OCC 201
Organizer/Presider: Sharon K. Davis, University of La Verne
Suzanne LaFetra Collier, Producer/Director
F R E E: The Power of Performance is an award-winning documentary film following five teenagers who use dance and spoken word to transcend the violence, broken families and poverty in their lives. The film captures a life-changing year with the Destiny Arts Center in Oakland, California, as they work together to create a performance based on their life stories. The film spotlights the power of artistic expression as the teens push themselves beyond their struggles to find strength, resilience and hope for the future.

Friday, March 29

10:15-11:45 am Presidential Distinguished Speakers Panel: Celebrating PSA 90 years: Presenting the Past and Present to Address the Challenges Facing Millennials in the Future OCC 208
Organizer/Presider: Elaine Bell Kaplan
Dean Dorn, Emeritus Professor, CSU Sacramento
Amy J. Orr, Linfield College
Three professors with extensive participation in PSA will discuss the past, present, and future of PSA, sociology, and millennials. Dean Dorn, Emeritus Professor, CSU Sacramento, was Secretary/Treasurer/Executive Director and ‘everything’ for PSA from 1993 to 2010. Sharon Davis, 2019 Program Chair, has been an active participant in PSA for many years. She has served as PSA Vice President, chaired numerous PSA committees, and presented research papers annually. Amy Orr, 2017-18 President of PSA, has been active in PSA since 2002, and has served as board member of AKD since 2012.

12:00-1:30 pm Presidential Session: Public Sociology in the Era of Trump: A Conversation with Arlie Hochschild and Michael Burawoy OCC 208
Arlie Hochschild, Professor Emeritus, UC Berkeley
Michael Burawoy, Professor, UC Berkeley
Two prominent public sociologists from UC Berkeley will discuss their ideas and research about public sociology today in conversation with PSA President Elaine Bell Kaplan, in an informal format with audience participation. Arlie Hochschild is the author of the National Book Award Finalist and New York Times bestseller Strangers in Their Own Land: Anger and Mourning on the American Right (2016), based on five years of research with Tea Party supporters in Louisiana, as well as The Second Shift (1989), The Managed Heart (1979), and other sociological classics. Michael Burawoy, author of Manufacturing Consent: Changes in the Labor Process Under Monopoly Capitalism (1982) and numerous articles, is an advocate of public sociology, and a scholar of capitalism, socialism, postcolonialism, methodology, and social movements to look at globalization from below, as it is lived. The conversation will be facilitated by Elaine Bell Kaplan, whose work uses a race/class/gender perspective to explore the lives of youth. Her most recent book is "We Live in the Shadow": Inner-City Kids Tell Their Stories Through Photographs, is an ethnographic study that explores life from the perspectives of Black and Latino inner-city kids. Her focus is on how inner-city kids make decisions to help them cope with family life, peer relations and academic achievement and handle the negative options that can make poverty a life sentence; pregnancy, gang involvement and drug abuse.

1:45-3:15 pm Presidential Panel: Engaging Millennials in Sociological Theory, sponsored by the Emeritus and Retired Sociologists Committee OCC 208
Glenn Goodwin, author of Classical Sociological Theory: Rediscovering the Promise of Sociology (with Joseph Schmecca) and co-editor (with Martin Schwartz) of Professing Humanist Sociology, and member of the PSA Emeritus and Retired Sociologists Committee) has assembled a theory panel called “Engaging Millennials in Sociological Theory,” with panelists Randall Collins (PSA President, 1993), Jonathan Turner (PSA President, 1989), Norbert Wiley, and Kevin McCaffree. The panel will respond to a series of questions concerning the apparent disappearance of classical theory, what Millennials are learning today about the classics, the future of classical theory and the effects on the discipline of its apparent demise. Panel members will respond to each other and to comments and questions from the audience.

3:30-5:00 pm  Presidential Session: Hip Hop for Change Presents THE MC: Theory of Hip Hop Evolution, Music, and Culture

Organizer: Elaine Bell Kaplan OCC 208

Presentation by Oakland non-profit Hip Hop for Change on the history and culture of hip hop and how local, community-based hip hop can be a social movement for challenging white supremacy, patriarchy, homophobia, and materialism and support empowerment, education, and efficacy. This presentation is similar to those given by Hip Hop for Change in schools around the Bay Area. Description: This engaging and interactive presentation will provide an in depth look into the history and development of Hip Hop, starting from it's humble beginnings in The Bronx and its growth into a worldwide multi-cultural movement and vehicle for social justice, youth self expression and entrepreneurship, shifting and shaking the worlds of art, entertainment and global pop culture. Features Marlon (UnLearn The World) Richardson,

5:15-6:45 pm  Presidential Address and Awards Ceremony Jr. Ballroom

Presentation of PSA 2019 Awards, followed by President Elaine Bell Kaplan’s address, “The Millennial Leftists are Emerging: Are Sociologists Ready for Them?”

This discussion of Millennials, including the Z generation (born between 1997 and 2000) takes a look at a new generation who became adults in this millennium/century (Pew Center Research, 2019). To some, the word “Millennial” sounds like a dirty word. The “M” word, let’s call it. Unfortunately, being associated with this word comes with a few negative connotations—whether deserved or not. Often, those connotations extend to the way Millennials are viewed as the “me” generation, who expect more than they deserve. One especially pervasive trope about Millennials is that they're inherently narcissistic, as documented by their attachment to their phones, their penchant for selfies, and their desire to share every aspect of their lives online. Despite these negative stereotypes, according to my research and that of others, we are encountering a generation that is willing to challenge the status quo.

But there is a critical issue that we should note. Several analysts have suggested that there is a gathering storm. Some Millennials believe, especially those in academia, that social science is tied to old theories and ideologies about race and gender, among other inconsistencies. These old ideas, as they see it, do not resonate with their views regarding equity. This view suggests that Millennials will continue to challenge the status quo. It may be that in the future most surveys will support multiple gender and race identities.

Several questions come to mind. How do we, as sociologists with our sense of history and other issues such as racial and gender inequality, help them along the way? Are we ready for this generation? Are they ready for us?

Saturday, March 30

12:00-1:30 pm  Presidential Panel: In Millennial Footsteps: Generation Z’s High School Student Movement

Organizer/Presider: Uriel Serrano, UC, Santa Cruz OCC 208

Jamileh Ebrahimhi, Youth Organizing Director, RYSE Youth Center, Richmond

Veronica Terriquez, UC Santa Cruz

This panel draws together some of California’s youth activists, youth organizers, and sociology’s leading scholars of youth social movements to lead a discussion on youth mobilization in the California context. The panelists have participated and/or researched educational justice organizing, youth voter engagement and mobilization, and immigrant youth movements. This panel will address the diversity of past and current youth activism in Los Angeles, the Central Valley, and the Bay Area, and it will present an opportunity to reflect on the role of sociologist and sociological research in community-based organizing.

Sunday, March 31

8:30-10:00 am  Presidential Session: Millennials, Gender and Inequality, sponsored by the Committee on the Status of Women

Organizer/Presider: Sojung Lim, Utah State University OCC 208

Seeing the Light? Persistence in Individual Explanations for Gender Inequality, Emily Carian, Stanford University; Amy Johnson, Stanford University

Fat Women on Instagram: Gendered and Racialized Constructions of Sexual Subjectivity Through Social Media Amanda Rodriguez, University of California Santa Barbara
10:15-11:45 am  Presidential Session: #NextGenBlackSoc: New Directions in the Sociology of Black Millennials
Organizer/Presider: Candice Robinson, University of Pittsburgh

This multigenerational panel of advanced graduate students will discuss the way their research topics are brought together by the broad subject of Black Millennials and anchored in building towards a community of the Next Generation of Black Sociologists. Each of their research interests enter the conversation concerning the everyday life of this cohort of Black people from different subjects: civic engagement; family; gender; hip hop/pop culture, and religious identity. A panel discussion style surrounding these varying entry points allows for the panelists to discuss the unexpected variations that emerge when observing populations that are seemingly similar. In addition to their specific subject areas, each person will outline how their research methods take into consideration the use of the internet for context and as a way to contact this population for the use of ethnographic and interview work. Concluding with an informal discussion with the attendees, this panel will be informative with a mission to advance scholarly research in Sociology and more specifically on the everyday life of Black Millennials.

Papers:
- Young, Black, and Ambitious: Black Middle Class Millennials’ Commitment to Community  Candice Robinson, University of Pittsburgh
- Black Christian Millennials: Reconciling Racial and Religious Tensions  Shaonta Allen, University of Cincinnati
- “That Was the Sin That Did Jezebel In”: Black Women’s Recollection and Reclamation of Their Sexuality  Ifeyinwa Davis, Louisiana State University
- The Everyday as Problematic: Using Millennial Pop Culture to Explicate Social Theory  Maretta McDonald, Louisiana State University

12:00-1:30 pm  Presidential Session: Reconstructing Expertise on Resistance: What We Can Learn from Young Communities of Color Mobilizing against Social Inequality
Organizer/Presider: Theresa Johnson, University of California Santa Cruz

This panel will enact a critical dialogue on community resistance and youth agency and resilience to bridge the gap between scholar activism and youth-led community-based efforts combating social injustices. Historically, critical dialogue has omitted low-income communities of color and youth voices. Academic spaces often remain inaccessible to community members in a multitude of ways: geographically, structurally, and intellectually. Thus, omitting young people’s voices in these spaces reifies expertise on resistance to sites of structural oppression as legitimate only by certain actors, namely white scholars studying communities of color for academic purposes. This panel aims to de-reconstruct who is commonly thought of as knowledge-producers in the research areas of cultural resistance, grassroots activism, and structural inequality. As graduate students doing researching with (not on) youth of color activists, we are consciously making space for youth by inviting them to share their stories on political engagements and resistance to the issues in their low-income communities. We also seek to share how we, as members of these communities and as researchers in academia, negotiate our own lived experiences as women of color through our community-based scholarship and research methodologies. This panel will touch on a variety of issues that affect communities of color across California, such as young women of color’s rural activism in California’s Central Valley, social justice participatory undergraduate research in public health, and international travel as a vital tool for learning and identity formation.

Papers:
- Youth Rural Activism: Organizing and Mobilizing in California’s Central Valley, featuring Valeria Mena  Roxanna Villalobos, University of California Santa Cruz
- On Powerful Children and Public Health  Karina Ruiz, University of California Santa Cruz with Lesly Martinez Ibanez, my mentee from the Cultivamos Exclencia Scholars at UC Santa Cruz
- Oakland to Johannesburg: Travel as Social Resistance  Theresa Johnson, University of California Santa Cruz

New Kind of Session: Open Discussion

This year, PSA is trying something new: sessions to provide opportunities for attendees to engage in open discussion on areas of common interest—what we are calling “Open Discussion” sessions. The goal is to build intellectual community and networks among attendees interested in the same research areas.

Friday, March 29, 3:30-5:00 pm — Crime, Law, and Deviance, OCC 203, and Environmental Sociology in the Age of Climate Crisis: Directions for Research, Teaching, and Community Engagement, OCC 205

Saturday, March 30, 12:00-1:30 pm — The Ethnographer’s Circle, “How To Do Research”, OCC 212 and 3:30-5:00 pm — Salon des Sexualités, Oakland, Migration/Immigration, OCC 204, and Race/Ethnicity, OCC 207
These sessions feature discussions between the author and “critics” of newly published books.

Thursday, March 28

12:00-1:30 pm OCC 210-11 Giants: The Global Power Elite, by Peter Phillips (Seven Stories Press, 2018) The global power elite are the activist core of the transnational capitalist class--1% of the world’s wealthy people. They serve the uniting function of providing ideological justifications for their shared interests through the corporate media and they establish the parameters of needed actions for implementation by transnational governmental organizations and capitalist nation-states. The global power elite are self-aware of their existence as a numerical minority in the vast sea of impoverished humanity. Roughly 80% of the world’s population lives on less than ten dollars a day and half live on less than three dollars a day. This concentration of protected wealth leads to a crisis of humanity, whereby poverty, war, starvation, mass alienation, media propaganda, and environmental devastation are reaching levels that threaten our species’ future. Critics: Susan Rahman, College of Marin; Juan Salinas and Nicole Wolfe, Sonoma State University

Friday, March 29

10:15-11:45 am OCC 210-11 The Trans Generation: How Trans Kids (and Their Parents) are Creating A Gender Revolution, by Ann Travers (NYU Press, 2018) In this book, Ann Travers employs a critical race and anti-colonial perspective to situate transgender children in assemblages of power and privilege. Based on interviews with trans kids and parents of trans kids in Canada and the USA, this book resists the current tendency in mainstream and social media to focus on relatively privileged (although still very vulnerable) trans kids to instead emphasize the ways in which white supremacist, colonial and hetero-patriarchal systems of domination contribute to the unique precarities of racialized/poor/Indigenous/Native trans kids. Travers advocates systemic change to reduce the precarity of those trans kids experiencing multiple inequalities and insists that these changes will benefit all kids, cis or trans. Critics are invited to challenge this analysis and the social change agenda that Travers advocates.

Critics: Mary Robertson, CSU San Marcos; Brandon Robinson, UC Riverside; Luis Gutierrez-Mock, UCSC Department of Social and Behavioral Sciences and Center of Excellence for Transgender Health

1:45-3:15 pm California Styling Masculinity: Gender, Class, and Inequality in the Men’s Grooming Industry, by Kristen Barber (Rutgers University Press, 2016) The twenty-first century has seen the emergence of a new style of man: the metrosexual. Overwhelmingly straight, white, and wealthy, these impeccably coiffed urban professionals spend big money on everything from facials to pedicures, all part of a multi-billion-dollar male grooming industry. Yet as this innovative study reveals, even as the industry encourages men to invest more in their appearance, it still relies on women to do much of the work. Styling Masculinity investigates how men’s beauty salons have persuaded their clientele to regard them as masculine spaces. To answer this question, sociologist Kristen Barber goes inside Adonis and The Executive, two upscale men’s salons in Southern California. Conducting detailed observations and extensive interviews with both customers and employees, she shows how female salon workers not only perform the physical labor of snipping, tweezing, waxing, and exfoliating, but also perform the emotional labor of pampering their clients and pumping up their masculine egos. Letting salon employees tell their own stories, Barber not only documents occasions when these workers are objectified and demeaned, but also explores how their jobs allow for creativity and confer a degree of professional dignity. In the process, she traces the vast network of economic and social relations that undergird the burgeoning male beauty industry. Critics: Miriam Abelson, Portland State University; Tristan Bridges, UC Santa Barbara; Miilanni Kang, U. of Massachusetts, Amherst

1:45-3:15 pm OCC 210-11 Growing Up Queer: Kids and the Remaking of LGBTQ Identity, by Mary Robertson (NYU Press, 2018) Growing Up Queer explores the changing ways that young people are now becoming LGBT-identified in the US. Through interviews and three years of ethnographic research at an LGBTQ youth drop-in center, Mary Robertson focuses on the voices and stories of youths themselves in order to show how young people understand their sexual and gender identities, their interest in queer media, and the role that family plays in their lives. The young people who participated in this research are among the first generation to embrace queer identities as children and adolescents. This groundbreaking and timely consideration of queer identity demonstrates how sexual and gender identities are formed through complicated, ambivalent processes as opposed to being natural characteristics that one is born with. In addition to showing how youth understand their identities, Growing Up Queer describes how young people navigate queerness within a culture where being gay is the "new normal." Using Sara Ahmed’s concept of queer orientation, Robertson argues that being queer is not just about one’s sexual and/or gender identity, but is understood through intersecting identities including race, class, ability, and more. By showing how society accepts some kinds of LGBTQ-identified people while rejecting others, Growing Up Queer provides evidence of queerness as a site of social inequality. For us as scholars trying to engage the Millennial experience and examine power and social change, this book importantly offers us a lens into not only sexuality but also the process of negotiating complex and intersectional identities. Critics: Ann Travers, Simon Fraser University; James Dean, Sonoma State University; Anna Muraco, Loyola Marymount University

Saturday, March 30

8:30-10:00 am OCC 208 Mixed Messages: Norms and Social Control Around Teen Sex and Pregnancy, by Stefanie Mollborn (Oxford University Press, 2017) Stefanie Mollborn’s book examines how schools, families, and peers communicate social norms around teen sex, contraception, and pregnancy in different kinds of communities, and how teens negotiate around these norms in their daily lives. Critics: Hava Gordon, U. of Denver; Sarah Miller, Boston U.; Krystale Littlejohn, Occidental College; Sirkka Elliott, U. of British Columbia

10:15-11:45 am OCC 208 Where the Millennials Will Take Us: A New Generation Wrestles with the Gender Structure, by Barbara Risman (Oxford University Press, 2018) Are today’s young adults gender rebels or returning to tradition? In Where the Millennials Will Take Us, Barbara J. Risman reveals the diverse strategies youth use to negotiate the ongoing gender revolution. Using her theory of gender as a social structure, Risman analyzes life history interviews with a diverse set of Millennials to probe how they understand gender and how they might change it. Some are true believers that men and women are essentially different and should be. Others are innovators, defying stereotypes and rejecting sexist ideologies and organizational practices. Perhaps new to this generation are gender rebels who reject sex categories, often refusing to present their bodies within them and sometimes claiming genderqueer identities. And finally, many youths today are simply confused by all the changes swirling around them. As a new generation contends with unsettled gender norms and expectations, Risman reminds us that gender is much more than an identity; it also shapes expectations in everyday life, and structures the organization of workplaces, politics, and, ideology. To pursue change only in individual lives, Risman argues, risks the opportunity to eradicate both gender inequality and gender as a primary category that organizes social life. Critics: Cecilia Ridgeway, Stanford U.; Marjukka Ollilainen, Weber State U.; Georgianni Davis, U. of Nevada, Las Vegas

“The Millennial Leftists are Emerging: Are Sociologists Ready for Them?”
This discussion of Millennials, including the Z generation (born between 1997 and 2000) takes a look at a new generation who became adults in this millennium/century (Pew Center Research, 2019). To some, the word “Millennial” sounds like a dirty word. The “M” word, let’s call it. Unfortunately, being associated with this word comes with a few negative connotations—whether deserved or not. Often, those connotations extend to the way Millennials are viewed as the “me” generation, who expect more than they deserve. One especially pervasive trope about Millennials is that they're inherently narcissistic, as documented by their attachment to their phones, their penchant for selfies, and their desire to share every aspect of their lives online. Despite these negative stereotypes, according to my research and that of others, we are encountering a generation that is willing to challenge the status quo.
But there is a critical issue that we should note. Several analysts have suggested that there is a gathering storm. Some Millennials believe, especially those in academia, that social science is tied to old theories and ideologies about race and gender, among other inconsistencies. These old ideas, as they see it, do not resonate with their views regarding equity. This view suggests that Millennials will continue to challenge the status quo. It may be that in the future most surveys will support multiple gender and race identities.
Several questions come to mind. How do we, as sociologists with our sense of history and other issues such as racial and gender inequality, help them along the way? Are we ready for this generation? Are they ready for us? |

A Closing Note from the Executive Director

Thank you for attending PSA 2019—the 90th annual PSA conference! I hope that you found many sessions and presentations of interest to you and enjoyed intellectual community with your fellow sociologists.

Please watch your email for a post-conference survey, and take a few minutes to give feedback on what you enjoyed about the conference and where PSA can improve.

PSA continues to thrive because of the dedication and volunteer work of many people. The PSA board of directors and officers work throughout the year to make decisions for PSA and ensure its ongoing financial stability. PSA also thrives because of the work of its elected and appointed committees, the Program Chair and Program Committee, and the editorial team of Sociological Perspectives. At the conference itself, student volunteers staff the PSA registration area and Silent Auction.

It is an honor to work with all of you.

Lora Bristow, Executive Director, Pacific Sociological Association

First floor of the Oakland Marriott Downtown/City Center—No PSA events here!

The OCC (Oakland Convention Center) rooms are all here.

This is the second floor conference area, where almost everything PSA happens!

Receptions (except for the Student Reception) are in the Skyline. Use the hotel elevator to the top floor.
See you next year in Eugene, Oregon for the Pacific Sociological Association’s 91st Annual Meeting

President: Dennis J. Downey, CSU Channel Islands
Vice President: Ellen Reese, UC Riverside
Program Chair: Elizabeth Sowers, CSU Channel Islands

Theme: “Democracy in a Divided Society”
